WEEKLY

On location in Vancouver

Today's issue of CW is coming to you courtesy of Norwegian Cruise Line and Air Canada.

CRUISE Weekly is today setting off on the inaugural US sailing of Norwegian Cruise Line's Norwegian Joy.

Over the weekend we'll be joining travel agents from Australia, UK, Latin America and Asia as well as media to explore all this newly renovated ship has to offer.

We're looking forward to enjoying some of the industry firsts that Joy has to provide, including an onboard go-kart track, open-air laser tag arena and the musical production of Footloose.

We arrived yesterday refreshed thanks to Air Canada's Business class before enjoying Norwegian's welcome cocktail party, see more on page two.

CLIA applauds Auckland wharf decision

THE controversial extension of Auckland's Queen's Wharf (CW 13 Mar) has officially been given the green light, after an independent panel came to the agreement that the development would have "positive economic and social benefits" for the cruise industry.

The project, which has been under fire since its original proposal in Nov 2017, will see the addition of a 90m fixed gangway and two 15m by 15m concrete mooring structures fixed to the seabed allowing for the berthing of larger cruise ships.

The official report, released by Auckland developer, Panuku, laid out a range of conditions including a list of environmental best practices, with the stipulation it be removed "after no more than 15 years".

Cruise Lines International Association (CLIA) Australasia Managing Director, Joel Katz, said the decision was not only a step forward for Auckland, but for destinations around NZ.

"As the international gateway to New Zealand, Auckland's current berthing restrictions are hampering cruise operations and threatening to limit economic growth both locally and in other regions," Katz said.

"The decision to increase the capacity of Queens Wharf will mean larger ships can safely berth in Auckland and make onward visits to ports all over the country, bringing enormous economic benefits," he added.

Katz continued by saying

Auckland had been "at risk of losing its place in international cruise itineraries" following the introduction of larger ships.

"The solution... ensures NZ's cruise tourism sector continues to thrive." he concluded.

Adventurer launch

CORAL Expeditions has officially launched its fourth ship, the 120-passenger Coral Adventurer, with the ship setting sail for Darwin from Singapore on its maiden voyage on Wed.

The sold-out 18-day In The Trail of Tasman voyage will take its first guests through the Indonesian archipelago as it retraces the historic explorations of Dutch explorer, Abel Tasman.

Following its inaugural sailing, Coral Adventurer will arrive in Australian waters with an official ceremonial welcome in Darwin on 12 May, before commencing a 10-night venture through West Papua.

She will then return to Darwin to resume the Kimberley season.

Seabourn Europe

SEABOURN has launched its 2019 Europe Collection cruises, taking guests on a series of itineraries around the Mediterranean, Baltic, Spanish Isles, and more.

The collection includes voyages on board the cruise line's Ovation, Encore, Quest and Odyssey vessels, visiting more than 200 destinations on cruises of between seven and 45-days.

"Our voyages are ideal for anyone seeking to take a longer holiday and get the most out of their time visiting beautiful destinations dotting Northern Europe, Western Europe, and the Mediterranean," said Chris Austin, Senior Vice President of Global Marketing & Sales.

ANZAC Day at sea

CARNIVAL Spirit hosted an ANZAC Day dawn service at sea yesterday, during its eightnight cruise to New Caledonia.

As part of the service, retired serviceman, Lieutenant Colonel Campbell Paine, read the ANZAC poem, 'ANZAC Cove', written by his great uncle, Leon Gellert.

Guests had the opportunity to enjoy a 'Gunfire Breakfast', play backyard cricket, a game of Two-Up and view a screening of Gallipoli throughout the day.

"The dawn service serves as a moment of reflection and remembrance & celebrates the ANZAC Spirit," said Carnival Cruise Line's VP Australia, Jennifer Vandekreeke.

"We thank Lieutenant Colonel Campbell Paine for leading us in marking this important day."

Smiles full of Joy

TRAVEL agents from Australia, the UK, Latin America and Asia were welcomed last night to Vancouver for the inaugural US sailing of Norwegian Joy.

Travellers arriving vesterday morning were treated to a city tour and lunch, before watching Joy sail into Vancouver in the early evening.

The ship was first built for the Chinese market in 2017, but late last year underwent a US$50 million dollar renovation, transforming her to be almost identical to sister-ship Norwegian

She will now join Bliss sailing in Alaska from May 2019, before she cruises the Mexican Riviera, and Panama Canal from Miami and Los Angeles in 2020.

Over the three-night sailing, guests will have the chance to sample all the exciting activities and mouth-watering dining options that the ship has to offer, with 16 dining venues and 17 bars and lounges.

Offers correct as at 15 April 2019 and are subject to change or withdrawal. Offer available on all sailings departing 1 September 2019 onwards and ends 30 April 2019 unless extended. For full terms and conditions click here.

Viking Sun guests give back

VIKING Sun guests and crew have donated US$50,000 worth of food, clothing, shoes, linen and other supplies to the victims of Cyclone Idai in Maputo, Mozambique.

Guests onboard the ship, which is currently sailing Viking's 128day World Cruise itinerary, began to collect items to contribute at the beginning of Apr.

Following the ship's inaugural visit to Madagascar, she called on Maputo on 11 Apr, where 15 pallets of donations were unloaded and presented to Red Cross aid workers.

Among the donations were hundreds of baby hats, handknitted by a dedicated group of Viking world cruise guests (pictured).

Virgin's coffee fix

VIRGIN Voyages has partnered with Intelligentsia Coffee, whose "sustainability aligns with [Virgin's] vision when it comes to caring for people and the planet".

The partnership will feature a Virgin Voyages blend The Nauti Blend using coffee beans from farms in both the Northern and Southern Hemisphere.

The other offerings will generally be globally grown single origin with a focus on "organic or shade grown" meaning from a specific farm and not a blend.

Some regions include Central America & Northern Mexico. South America, and both northern & central East Africa. Intelligentsia will also be training baristas to design creative coffee activities, like coffee cocktail tastings.

Adv Canada Arctic

ADVENTURE Canada is offering guests looking to explore the Arctic Circle's Northwest Passage savings of more than US$7,000 per couple on board its Ocean Explorer vessel.

The cruise, which departs from either Greenland on 21 Aug 2020 or Canada on 06 Sep 2020, takes guests on a journey crossing the Arctic Circle, cruising along the icebergs at Ilulissat Icefjord, the chance to see the remnants of the Franklin Expedition, and Devon Island.
