MSC Cruises makes a big bang

MSC Cruises has lit up Hamburg's Elbe River in its christening event for MSC Grandiosa, shortly before announcing it would be the first global cruise line with carbon neutral marine operations.

All carbon dioxide emissions from MSC's fleet will be offset from 01 Jan, with the announcement coming as part of a broader vision to support the United Nations' Sustainable Development Goals, in tandem with continued investments in advanced environmental technology allowing for zero-emissions ship operations.

The declaration came on the occasion of the cruise line's largest-ever christening event, with Grandiosa (pictured) set to visit eight countries and 11 ports across 127 days, engaging with over 14,000 travel agents.

With special guests including

European celebrities Annemarie & Wayne Carpendale, Michelle Hunziker, Emma Lanford, Mousse T and Jochen Schropp, godmother Sophie Loren named her 15th MSC Cruises ship, with Grandiosa "the most environmentally friendly" flagship the line has built.

Grandiosa will now embark on a tour to Southampton, Lisbon, Portugal, Barcelona, Spain, Marseille and Genoa before commencing seven-night cruises on 23 Nov.

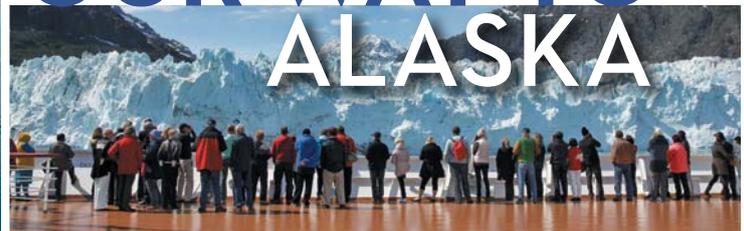

The line also revealed details of its 2022 world cruise last week, which will pay visit to 43 ports.

Carnival in Bahamas

CARNIVAL Corporation has pledged to help fund the restoration of the Rand Memorial Hospital, the main hospital on Grand Bahama Island.

Having suffered severe damage in Hurricane Dorian, the company has signed a memorandum of understanding with the government to repair the building and replace damaged medical equipment for the Freeport institution.

Set to be up and running by Mar, the project will also see the completion of a new kitchen, which was under construction when it was damaged by the storm.

The agreement will see the two parties work alongside Direct Relief, the Grand Bahama Shipyard, the University of Miami and World Central Kitchen, among others.

"In support of overall recovery efforts in The Bahamas, we have worked with government and community leaders to determine meaningful ways we can help that will deliver a lasting impact, and our shared mission to support the restoration of Rand Memorial Hospital exemplifies that commitment," said Carnival Corporation VP of Global Ports and Caribbean Government Relations Marie McKenzie.
