Catch an Arctic cruise with Seabourn

SEABOURN Cruise Line has announced new Northwest Passage expeditions for next year on board Seabourn Venture.

The ship will offer six voyages from Aug to Oct 2026, ranging from eight to 24 days, guided by a 23-person expedition team.

Highlight experiences during the season will include Devon Island, the world's largest uninhabited island, known as 'Mars on Earth'; connecting with the people of the Arctic, learning their stories and cultural traditions in Cambridge Bay; and touring Ilulissat, once known as the 'Town of 10,000 Souls', where sled dogs outnumber the population.

Cruisers will also visit the remains of historic sites, like outposts of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Hudson's Bay Company, in remote and uninhabited islands of the High Arctic tundra.

Following its Arctic voyages, Venture will sail south for Caribbean, South American, and Antarctic adventures.

"The Northwest Passage is one of the most famous and historic routes in the Arctic, and we are excited to give travellers an opportunity to explore this region with Seabourn," President Mark

Tamis said.

"Guests will admire towering icebergs, encounter unique wildlife found nowhere else, and immerse themselves in the stories of the daring expeditions that paved the way - all while enjoying Seabourn Venture's ultra-luxury comforts and services," he added. MS

Stay Updated

Follow Cruise Weekly on social media to get your cruise news first

CRUISE-LOVERS are typically no stranger to the sector's objectors, but this is ridiculous.

A bride's sibling has refused to attend her wedding on a cruise ship, complaining of "poor guest accommodation".

The sister-in-law-to-be said she is considering skipping the wedding due to its inconvenient date, its travel requirements, and the wedding's location on board a cruise ship.

"As someone who is unable to cruise and who hates all travel, this is extremely problematic for me," the bride's sibling wrote on Reddit, asking fellow bloggers for their advice.

However, the wedding invitee suggested her reason for nonattendance may not necessarily be because she hates cruising.

"I am autistic and eat a strict diet at very strict times," the sibling wrote.

"I have been informed the cruise ship will not allow me to bring any homemade food onboard and I will only be able to select food from a small menu which does not meet my needs," they explained.

HAL gets cooking

HOLLAND America Line (HAL) is welcoming acclaimed chefs Ethan Stowell and Jacques Torres on two of its Grand Voyages this year.

Exploring with RSSC

REGENT Seven Seas Cruises (RSSC) on Fri hosted some of its Sydney-based industry partners aboard Seven Seas Explorer during an extended stay in the harbour city.

The ship arrived the day prior, providing an ideal opportunity to showcase the onboard Chartreuse specialty restaurant to travel advisors and their guests.

Attendees were also able to check out other features such as the extensive spa, entertainment facilities and staterooms aboard the all-suite vessel.

Most staterooms feature a walkin closet, king bed and marble bathroom - complete with a full sized bath and separate shower.

The first of its class, Explorer was in 2016 delivered into the hands of Jason Montague, who has just returned as Chief Luxury Officer for Norwegian Cruise Line Holdings to lead RSSC and Oceania Cruises (CW 07 Jan).

Strong winds meant a modified itinerary, which saw the ultraluxury vessel call at White Bay until lunchtime on Sat, before she headed north on a 19-night Emerald Seas & The Great Reef voyage to Singapore via the Queensland coast, Darwin, Komodo, Bali and Malaysia. BP

Waves and wine

SWAN Hellenic has introduced its first-ever cultural expedition cruise offering a connoisseur focus, in partnership with Champagne Castelnau.

Departing Lisbon on May 12 on board Diana, the nine-night 'Legacy of Wine - An Atlantic Voyage' sails from Portugal to Brittany, calling at Leixoes, Ferrol, Santander, Bilbao, Lorient, Roscoff, Saint-Malo, and Honfleur.

Guests will enjoy paired tastings, gourmet dining and gastronomic excursions led by renowned Master of Wine Keith Isaac and Michelin Star chef Heribert Dietrich.

The cruise includes visits to prestigious vineyards and the producers of local delicacies, with wine tastings ranging from premium port and champagnes to Rioja, Ribera del Duero and award-winning ciders and calvados.

Each evening aboard, Isaac and Dietrich will team up to create an intimate celebration of fine wine and haute cuisine, bringing guests skillfully curated pairings.

"We are very proud of this significant enhancement to our cultural expedition cruising," said Swan Hellenic Chief Executive Andrea Zito.

"Every aspect has been expertly conceived to immerse our guests in transformative gastronomic experiences that enrich their voyage with new skills and insight."
